Empowering an Ecommerce Entrepreneur

The Challenge

Empowering an Ecommerce Entrepreneur

Jonathon Curtis, a determined young entrepreneur from Baton Rouge, Louisiana, had a clear vision for his future – he wanted to be his own boss and control his destiny. After graduating from Southeastern Louisiana University in 2013, he embarked on a journey to fulfill his entrepreneurial dreams. Curtis explored various business models before discovering the immense potential of Ecommerce, which he soon embraced as his Holy Grail. He ventured into selling products on Amazon, a move that eventually opened doors to Big Box Retail for his brand. However, to truly take his businesses to the next level, Curtis needed capital.

The Solution

Burns Funding's Innovative Support

Enter Burns Funding, an alternative funding company founded by serial entrepreneur Peter J. Burns III. Jonathon Curtis found the solution to his capital needs and more through Burns Funding. He not only secured the necessary capital for his business growth but also gained access to an innovative passive income business model. This model held the promise of providing him with all the capital he would ever require.

Peter J. Burns III, the visionary behind Burns Funding, was impressed by Curtis's enthusiasm and his understanding of the significance of Ecommerce. Curtis was already a believer in the immense potential of Ecommerce, making him an ideal candidate for Burns Funding's passive income business model, which heavily involved online stores.

For Curtis, the importance of strategic partnerships in the Ecommerce space was evident, and he recognized that Peter had valuable partnerships that could help turn his dreams into reality.

The Result

Turning Dreams into Reality

Jonathon Curtis's journey with Burns Funding has been transformative. With the capital and support provided by Burns Funding, he expanded his presence in the Ecommerce space and ventured into online stores. Curtis understood that in the world of Ecommerce, partnerships are crucial, and Peter's network of partners provided him with valuable resources and opportunities. Curtis's dreams were becoming a reality, and he was witnessing the growth of his businesses in ways he had never imagined.

Peter J. Burns III, a serial entrepreneur with a deep commitment to helping other entrepreneurs reach their full potential, had once again made a significant impact. Through Burns Funding, he not only addressed Jonathon Curtis's capital needs but also played a pivotal role in empowering an ambitious entrepreneur, fostering growth, and opening doors to new possibilities. Burns continues his mission to ensure that entrepreneurs like Jonathon Curtis have the financial support they need to realize their dreams and reach their full potential.

“It didn’t take long for Burns Funding to not only secure the capital but introduce me to an innovative passive income business model, which could provide all the capital I will ever need.”
